A Story of Courage, Sacrifice, and Betrayal

On September 12, 1897, a small band of 21 Sikh soldiers fought against 10,000 Afghan tribesmen at the Battle of Saragarhi. The Sikhs fought valiantly, but were ultimately defeated. Their story is a forgotten one, but it is a story that deserves to be told.

The Battle of Saragarhi was fought in the North-West Frontier Province of British India (now Pakistan). The Sikhs were part of the 36th Sikh Regiment of the British Indian Army. They were stationed at the fort of Saragarhi, which was located on a hilltop overlooking the road to Fort Gulistan.

On the morning of September 12, the Afghans attacked the fort with a force of 10,000 men. The Sikhs were outnumbered and outgunned, but they fought bravely. They held the fort for several hours, but were eventually overwhelmed. All 21 Sikhs were killed in the battle.

The Battle of Saragarhi is a story of courage, sacrifice, and betrayal. The Sikhs fought valiantly against overwhelming odds. They were betrayed by their British officers, who abandoned them to their fate. But their story is a reminder of the indomitable spirit of the Sikh people.
